

CEEH Doctoral Scholarship in Spanish Art-Historical Studies at The Courtauld Institute, London

The Courtauld is delighted to announce the creation of a fully-funded doctoral scholarship in Spanish art-historical studies, commencing at The Courtauld in October 2017. The scholarship will cover The Courtauld's Home/EU/International tuition fees for three years (or four if required), together with an annual stipend of £12,000 for living costs and travel.

Applicants are advised to send prospective supervisors a 300-word proposal, CV, and sample of written work in English well before the application deadline of 9 January 2017. They must demonstrate that Spanish art, architecture or visual culture forms the focus of their proposed research topic, which should also fall within the proposed supervisor's areas of research expertise.

Applicants should submit The Courtauld Scholarship application form together with their PhD application. See <http://courtauld.ac.uk/study/phd-research> for further information.

This scholarship has been created through the generosity of CEEH (Centro de Estudios Europa Hispánica), in association with ARTES, the Iberian and Latin-American Visual Arts Group.
